With over 20 years of experience as a musician, he continues to pursue his passion for creating, recording, and performing original music.

He began playing the violin at the age of 8, switched to guitar at 11, and started performing live at local bars by 16. Taught by his father, who introduced him to The Beatles and bluegrass music, he later developed a passion for metal and rock, which became the foundation of his powerful and expressive guitar style.

He studied at Selkirk College of Music in Canada, drawing inspiration from guitar legends such as Yngwie Malmsteen, Steve Vai, and Joe Satriani. Over the years, he has performed in multiple bands, often sharing the stage with his brothers Bo (drums) and Joe (bass).

He also served as host for a popular “Jam Night” in his hometown, earning a reputation as a creative and charismatic performer. Notably, he opened for the world-renowned guitarist Michael Schenker (MSG).

Currently based in Tokyo, he performs as vocalist and guitarist for “RedBedRock”, a multicultural rock band blending hard rock, world music, and Latin influences. The band evolved from a Guns N’ Roses tribute project, Kill Your Idols, and is now producing its debut album while releasing singles on major streaming platforms.

Alongside his music career, he has worked extensively as a model, actor, and narrator, appearing in commercials, music videos, and promotional events in both Japan and Canada.
